

Miral Gamradt was hired as the Finance Director for the City of Livingston in March of 2009. Prior to joining the City of Livingston, he did consulting work for local governments for four years, taught budgeting in Montana State University's Master of Public Administration program, served as Finance Director for the City of Bozeman for 20 years, was Business Manager for the School for Deaf and Blind for six years, and worked for the Legislature as a Fiscal Analyst and an Auditor for four years.

Miral has been married for over 30 years and has two children. His son Kellen is a civil engineer, working in Bozeman and he has a 12 year old daughter, Kylee. His wife Cheri has been a stay-at-home mom for several years, but keeps very busy home schooling their daughter, which obviously presents its challenges.

Miral has lived in Montana his entire life and has no plans to move from this beautiful state. He graduated from Montana State University with a degree in Business. Later, while continuing to work, he received a Master of Public Administration degree from the University of Montana.
